

Woodbrook Vale School Google Classroom Guide

If your son or daughter needs to stay at home for self isolating purposes, we will be providing all students with access to their weekly lesson content via Google Classroom.

To avoid missing out on vital learning, we hope that students will be able to complete the work set for their return to school. If you have any concerns or queries regarding remote learning work, please contact the school office.

What is Google Classroom?

- Google classroom is an easy to use online tool that allows teachers to send information to students in their classes.
- Your child has a Google Classroom 'class' for each of the subjects on their timetable.
- By logging into either the Google Classroom website or using the Google Classroom app they can see all of the 'announcements' (messages) and 'assignments' (homework) that their teachers have set them.

How can students track their work?

- Students should be checking their week's work periodically throughout the days they are isolating by reading the Google Classroom streams for their subjects.
- There is also a handy 'to do' list that collects all of their upcoming homework deadlines in one place.
- Students can also set up notifications and reminder emails to help them to never miss a deadline.

How can parents see Google Classroom?

- As a parent, you do not have the same level of access to Google Classroom. However, the school can associate your email addresses with your sons/ daughter's account as a 'guardian' upon request. This means that you will be sent a summary email on a daily or weekly basis.
- Why not ask your son/ daughter to show you Google Classroom from their account?
- Parental engagement with student's remote learning can be very useful to help them manage their time and work load.

You can download the Google Classroom and Google Drive apps to your devices, they are free from your app store.
